first generation student

Being a first-generation student is defined as being the first person in your family to attend college (meaning neither parent has more than a two-year college degree.) Even though it is a huge honor, being first gen also comes with its own unique set of challenges which certainly adds to the pressure and stresses of being in college. As first gen students, we oftentimes do not have a clue as to what attending college in the United States entails. Everything is new and foreign from the application process, to applying for on-campus housing, applying for Federal Financial Aid and scholarships, and how to get registered for classes. Coupled with the everyday stressors of life like being a parent, a recent immigrant, or even a non-traditional student can sometimes cause some weariness and reluctance in our potential students. We hope the following resources we have compiled will be a good starting point for those first-generation students that we hope to recruit!

Programming will include maximizing the high school visit & college fairs, financial aid, diversity and inclusion, and ethical admission practices. High school admission counselors and seasoned admission professionals will also provide insight and reflection and share career advice. ASI programming will serve as a tremendous resource and foster a professional network that will support your college admissions career. Lunch is included.

EPPs Are Coming...

Every year, thousands of Nebraska juniors, seniors, and their parents attend the college fairs brought to you by EducationQuest and NACRAO to find colleges that meet their needs. By attending EPPs (Educational Planning Programs), students have the opportunity to visit with college representatives from across the state and nation. EPPs are typically held during the month of September and beginning of October.

Attendance in the NACRAO EPPs are included in the membership fees. Make sure to renew your membership today to have access to the NACRAO EPP Registration. Registration for 2022 is open and more information will be sent out on the NACRAO list serv.

Due to decreasing participation levels by students and colleges, EducationQuest Foundation has made the decision not to host virtual college fairs in 2022-2023. We will promote the college fairs (Educational Planning Programs) to Nebraska students, encouraging them to register for a barcode and to attend a fair in their area.
